Homelike has launched its Spanish website

Cologne, July 19, 2018 - Homelike, the online platform for furnished business apartments for 30 nights or more, is making its offer available to Spanish-speaking users. While customers were previously limited to using the English or German site, the entire website has been available in Spanish since July 10, 2018. The online marketplace is thus expanding its potential group of customers by 570 million native speakers worldwide.

The first Spanish customer request was made the following day. The customer, who will move to Zurich for business purposes for just over a month, has expressed a positive opinion of the booking experience. On request, she told Homelike that she appreciated the clear and easy-to-use website and the Spanish language support. The launch came at just the right time for her, as she moved into the apartment just five days after the booking. This shows that Homelike is the ideal platform for booking furnished apartments as easily as hotel rooms, especially at short notice.

"We respond specifically to the needs of our customers"

For Dustin Figge, co-founder and CEO of Homelike, the launch of the Spanish website was only a matter of time:

"We have noticed that there is an enormous demand from Spanish-speaking countries. The launch of the Spanish website was therefore only the logical consequence. As Europe's leading platform for business apartments, this launch is a direct response to the needs of our Spanish-speaking customers and creates the trust that our German and English-speaking users already place in us."

In addition to the launch of the Spanish website, Homelike now also offers Spanish-speaking customer support when booking furnished apartments. According to Figge, the company's next step will be the further internationalisation and expansion of its supply into other European countries.
